Study on Automotive Products & Parts Industry

1. Background

The automotive products and parts industry is an important part of Pakistan’s engineering sector. It supports vehicle manufacturing including cars, motorcycles, commercial vehicles, and emerging electric vehicles. The sector has strong linkages with steel, plastics, rubber, electronics, and machining industries.

The industry includes a large number of vendors and parts manufacturers working with OEM assemblers and the aftermarket. It has good potential for growth due to rising demand for vehicles and replacement parts. At the same time, there is potential to increase exports in regional and global markets.

However, the sector is not fully utilizing its potential. There are issues such as high import dependence, low production efficiency, and limited export base. A focused study is required to assess installed capacity, actual production, and productivity gaps. The study will help identify key issues and provide simple recommendations for improving output, localization, and competitiveness.

Study on Capital Goods Sector

1. Background

The capital goods sector is an important part of Pakistan's engineering industry. It includes machinery, industrial equipment, electrical equipment, and heavy engineering products used in manufacturing, construction, energy, and infrastructure. The sector has strong linkages with steel, fabrication, electronics, and precision engineering.

The sector has growth potential due to increasing demand from industrial expansion, energy projects, and infrastructure development. It also has potential to reduce imports and increase exports of selected machinery and equipment.
